A citizen of a state is legally dead only after the state has issued a death certificate. For citizens of the United States: Note: there are state and federal variations to the procedures described below. The death certificate is a public document that must be filled out when a death occurs. The death certificate usually is required when a person passes away. In some cases it is required to report the death to a state official for civil purposes. For example, a birth certificate may not be provided to the state if the birth occurred before the birth certificate was issued 1cb139a0ed
