moved to the UK when Felix's parents and their friends are invited to stay with Felix and his Aunt and Uncle, Freddie and Ethel, in Walthamstow, London. With the house as their base, they plan their big summer get-together, The Bakers Dozen. Soon into their stay, Aunt and Uncle take a dislike to Felix's mother, Virginia, which is quite understandable given her usual lack of marriageable qualities. As the days pass, the Bakers and their guests are visited by a number of unexpected guests. This is always a source of great excitement to everybody, especially where food is concerned. One of the guests is Mr Hepplewhite who is in the process of renovating his house. His partner is Mr Custance, a very distinguished-looking man who lives in London permanently. He is an inventor, but he is also an eccentric. This may not be apparent at first, but soon it is very obvious that something rather odd is going on. There is a problem at the party, and soon it becomes clear that something sinister is

examined in house sparrows (*Passer

chickens (Gallus gallus domesticus), white-tailed deer (Odocoileus virginianus), and cattails (Typha spp.). Both viruses were detected in most tissues of the house sparrows, domestic chickens, and deer. In white-tailed deer and cattails, virus was detected in some tissues and organs but not others. The findings of this study indicate that house sparrows, domestic chickens, and white-tailed deer, can serve as possible reservoirs for G3V and LAC virus and that cattails can also serve as a reservoir of the virus. Not sure if this qualifies as a bug or if I messed something up, but I'd like to report an issue. If
